Hole 18

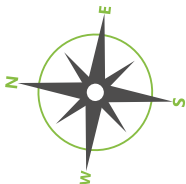

A close-up photograph of vibrant green grass blades, likely from a lawn or field, showing fine detail and texture. The blades are sharp and pointed, with some showing slight wear or bending. The background is a soft, out-of-focus green, creating a sense of depth. The lighting is bright and even, highlighting the natural color of the grass.

This map illustrates the layout of the 18th hole at the 1999 Ryder Cup venue. The green is located at the top right, with a red flag indicating the hole's position. The fairway is a light green area leading to the green. The surrounding landscape includes a large blue water hazard on the right, a dense forest of green trees on the left, and a white dashed line representing a boundary or path. Various markers, including red dots, a red square, and a yellow square, are placed throughout the map to indicate specific locations or hazards. The map is oriented vertically, with the green at the top and the fairway extending downwards.
